Who built the first Taylor rig?

When Oscar Taylor built the first "Taylor" rig back in the 60's, his goal was to produce a simple, easy to use, durable rig for the family's 4-rig well service company. As the company grew, Oscar continued to build all the company's equipment in house, growing to 12 rigs before selling the company in 1972.

Why did Taylor buy rigs?

With the acquisition, Taylor began refurbishing rigs and conducting Cat IV inspections for Basic as well as other external customers. The team's knowledge of the rig's design and manufacturing processes provided a unique perspective on how rigs could be refurbished more efficiently and at a lower cost.
